Peter Bisson, S.J., is a Jesuit priest in the Canadian Jesuit province. Originally from a French part of New Brunswick, he is now based in Toronto. He currently serves as assistant to the Jesuit provincial for justice, ecology and Indigenous relations. He represented the Jesuits at the meetings of the members of the Truth and Reconciliation Commission with the signatories of the Indian Residential Schools Settlement Agreement. The TRC finished its work in 2015. He served as provincial for the Jesuits in English Canada from 2012-2018.

He has a strong interest in the spiritual and theological links between faith, contemplation, and social justice, which was the subject of his doctorate in theology from the Pontifical Gregorian University in Rome.
